

ABSTRACT

A parking lever of a vehicle includes a slider of a predetermined length mounted to a lower area of a lever assembly. Also, a guide rail into which the slider is inserted is formed in a casing. The slider undergoes a sliding movement within the guide rail such that when the lever assembly is operated, the slider covers exposed areas of the guide opening of the casing.

5